

philippine studies

Ateneo de Manila University · Loyola Heights, Quezon City · 1108 Philippines

---

Contributors

James N. Anderson, Nobuhiko Fuwa, Rosalina Palanca-Tan,
David Wurfel and Helen Yu-Rivera

Philippine Studies vol. 54, no. 1 (2006): 149–150

Copyright © Ateneo de Manila University

---

Philippine Studies is published by the Ateneo de Manila University. Contents may not be copied or sent via email or other means to multiple sites and posted to a listserv without the copyright holder's written permission. Users may download and print articles for individual, noncommercial use only. However, unless prior permission has been obtained, you may not download an entire issue of a journal, or download multiple copies of articles.

Please contact the publisher for any further use of this work at philstudies@admu.edu.ph.

<http://www.philippinestudies.net>
Fri June 30 13:30:20 2008

Contributors

JAMES N. ANDERSON is professor emeritus in the Department of Anthropology, University of California at Berkeley, 232 Kroeber Hall, Berkeley, CA 94720-3710, USA. He has conducted longitudinal research in a large barangay in Pangasinan since 1960, publishing on a variety of topics including land tenure, economy, demography and social change, life strategies, and ecological relationships. Concerning the Philippines and Filipinos more generally, he has published on subjects such as interactional strategies, rural development, human ecology, natural resource management, traditional house gardens, internal and international migration, and the Filipino diaspora in Japan.

NOBUHIKO FUWA is associate professor in the Department of Horticultural Economics, Chiba University, 1-33, Yayoi-cho, Inage-ku, Chiba-shi, Chiba, 263-8522, Japan. During 2002–2004 he was affiliated with the International Rice Research Institute in Los Baños, Laguna, and the School of Economics at the University of the Philippines-Diliman. A development economist, his main interest focuses on rural poverty in Asia. His recent publications deal with the relationships between economic growth, inequality, and poverty reduction in the Philippines; poverty dynamics and economic mobility in a Pangasinan barangay; and intrahousehold resource allocation issues in India.

ROSALINA PALANCA-TAN is associate professor in the Department of Economics, School of Social Sciences, Ateneo de Manila University, Loyola Heights, Quezon City 1108, Philippines. She was director of the Japanese Studies Program, Ateneo de Manila, from 1996 to 2004. She obtained her Ph.D. in Economics from Sophia University in Tokyo, Japan. In 2004, she was visiting research fellow at the Institute of Environmental Studies, University of Tokyo under the Japan Foundation Fellowship; and in 2005, she was a postdoctoral fellow at the Environmental Economics Unit of Gothenburg University, Sweden, with a grant from the Canadian International Development Research Center. She does research for the Environment and Economy Program for Southeast Asia (EEPSEA). She has written and published articles in the areas of environmental economics and Philippines-Japan economic relations.

DAVID WURFEL is professor emeritus of Political Science, University of Windsor, Windsor, Ontario, and Senior Research Associate in the York Centre for Asian Research, York University, Toronto. He is author of Filipino Politics: Development and Decay (1988) and numerous articles and book chapters on Philippine politics. In the 1970s he was a Visiting Research Associate at the Institute of Philippine Culture, Ateneo de Manila; and in 1998 he was visiting professor of political science at the University of the Philippines-Diliman. He has been doing research on mining and the environment for more than a decade.

HELEN YU-RIVERA is assistant professor in the Department of Arts Studies, College of Arts and Letters, University of the Philippines, Diliman, Quezon City 1101, Philippines. She obtained her Ph.D. in Philippine Studies from the College of Social Sciences and Philosophy, University of the Philippines-Diliman, and holds an M.A. in Japanese Studies from the Ateneo de Manila University. She has written and published articles on Philippines-Japan relations. She is the author of Patterns of Continuity and Change: Imaging the Japanese in Philippine Editorial Cartoons (1930-1941; 1946-1956) published by the Ateneo de Manila University Press (2005).