

Contributors

JOSÉ S. ARCILLA, S.J. is archivist of the Philippine Jesuit Provincial Archives and of the Ateneo de Manila University, where he teaches history. He holds a doctorate from the Universidad Complutense de Madrid. Among his many published works is An Introduction to Philippine History.

MAGDALENA C. CABARABAN is chief of the Data Processing Division, Research Institute for Mindanao Culture, and assistant professor in the department of sociology and anthropology, Xavier University, Cagayan de Oro City. She has published many joint papers and reports with Madigan and/or Herrin.

FRANCIS X. CLARK, S.J., former Provincial of the Jesuit Philippine Province, first came to the Philippines in 1934. He earned his S.T.D. from the Gregorian University, Rome, in 1947, and taught philosophy in the Jesuit philosophate. At present he lectures in missiology at the East Asian Pastoral Institute.

LEO A. CULLUM, S.J., post World War II Superior of the Philippine Mission, was founder and first editor of Philippine Studies. He taught ethics and moral theology in San Jose Seminary, Berchmans College, and Ateneo Law School. At present he is chaplain of St. Thomas More Chapel, Padre Faura St., Manila.

FRANCISCO R. DEMETRIO, S.J., is director of the Philippine Folklife and Folklore Center, Xavier University, Cagayan de Oro City. He holds a doctorate from the University of California at Los Angeles (UCLA) and has authored many studies including Myths and Symbols (Manila, 1979).

DOREEN G. FERNANDEZ, professor of English, Ateneo de Manila University, holds her PhD from the same university. She has authored numerous articles and works on Philippine culture; the more recent include International Popular Culture, (vol. 1, no 1) Philippines, and In Performance (Manila, 1981).

ANGEL HIDALGO, S.J., is in charge of the archives and library of the Manila Observatory with which he has been connected since 1963. Author of many scientific studies, Fr. Hidalgo came to the Philippines in 1951 after being expelled from China where he had worked for twenty years, especially at the observatory of Zikawei and the meteorological station in Wuhu.

HUBERT JACOBS, S.J., is a member of the Jesuit Historical Institute, Rome. His field of specialization is the Portuguese Missions in Indonesia (Moluccas Islands) during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. His latest major publication is Documenta Mahucensia, (Rome: Mon. Histor. Soc. Iesu, 1974).

MANUEL RUIZ JURADO, S.J., of the Jesuit Historical Institute in Rome, specializes in Jesuit spirituality. Among his numerous publications is Orígenes del Noviciado en la Compañía de Jesús (Rome, 1979).

FRANCIS C. MADIGAN, S.J., is director of the Research Institute for Mindanao Culture and chairman of the department of sociology and anthropology, Xavier University, Cagayan de Oro City. He holds a doctorate from the University of North Carolina. Among his recent publication is New Approaches to the Measurement of Vital Roles in Developing Countries.

EDMUNDO M. MARTINEZ, S.J., is vice president for Planning and Development, Ateneo de Manila University, and assistant professor in Loyola School of Theology. He holds graduate degrees in theology from the Leopold Franzens University, Innsbruck, Austria, and the University of Saint Michael's College, Toronto.

JAMES J. MEANY, S.J., was principal founder of the Jesuit Educational Association (JEA) and of the Philippine Accrediting Association of Schools, Colleges and Universities (PAASCU), and was very active in the Catholic Educational Association of the Philippines (CEAP) from 1948-68. He was the Jesuits' prefect of studies in the Philippines from 1957-68, and founder and first executive secretary of the East Asian Jesuit Educational Association (EAJEA), 1968-75.

BIENVENIDO F. NEBRES, S.J., has just finished seven years as Dean of the Ateneo de Manila, School of Arts and Sciences. He holds a PhD in math from Stanford University, has been actively engaged in founding and developing the Mathematical Society of the Philippines and the Southeast Asian Mathematical Society.

THOMAS J. O'SHAUGHNESSY, S.J., studied arabic in Beirut, Lebanon, and Islamics in the Pontifical Oriental Institute, Rome. At present he is teaching theology in the Ateneo de Manila and Islamics in Loyola School of Theology.

JOHN N. SCHUMACHER, S.J., noted historian and author, holds a doctorate from Georgetown University. A former editor of this journal, he has published widely both here and abroad, in Philippine history. At present he is professor of church history at Loyola School of Theology.