

Contributors

PEDRO S. DE ACHÚTEGUI, S.J., is director of Cardinal Bea Institute for Ecumenical Studies, professor of dogmatic theology in the Loyola School of Theology, and secretary of the Executive Committee for the Quadricentennial Celebration of the Manila Archdiocese. SUSAN EVANGELISTA has her M.A. in Asian Studies from the Asian Center of the University of the Philippines and is associate professor at the Ateneo de Manila's Department of English. MARY RACELIS HOLLNSTEINER, who has authored several publications in sociology, is professor of sociology and anthropology at the Ateneo de Manila and currently urban consultant to the UNICEF. WILLIAM J. MALLEY, S.J., is former professor of church history and dogmatic theology at the Loyola School of Theology, and is presently attached to the Department of Religious Studies, Xavier University. His recent book is reviewed in this issue. VICENTE L. RAFAEL is assistant instructor at the Department of History, Ateneo de Manila University. JOHN N. SCHUMACHER, S.J., is professor of church history at the Loyola School of Theology, former editor of Philippine Studies, and author of numerous books and articles on Philippine church history. PEDRO C. SEVILLA, S.J., is Program Coordinator and Secretary of the Loyola School of Theology, and professor of dogmatic theology. MOST REV. BRUNO TORPIGLIANI, D.D., is Apostolic Nuncio to the Philippines.