

Contributors

JOSÉ NILO BINONGO earned his B.S. in Management Engineering at Ateneo de Manila University and finished his M.Sc. in Mathematics at Sophia University, Tokyo.

JEAN-PAUL DUMONT is a senior Fulbright researcher in Anthropology at the University of San Carlos and the Clarence J. Robinson professor of Anthropology at George Mason University. His recent book is Visayan Vignettes (Ateneo Press 1992).

RUBEN ENCARNACION is currently taking Ph.D. in Clinical Psychology at Ateneo de Manila University. He runs a management consultancy firm called PsycheVision.

RESIL B. MOJARES is director of Cebuano Studies Center and professor at the University of San Carlos, Cebu City. He received his Ph.D. in Literature from the University of the Philippines.

NIELS MULDER is an independent anthropologist working on the cultural dynamics of Thai, Javanese and Tagalog-Filipino societies.

EDNA ZAPANTA-MANLAPAZ is a professor of English at the Ateneo de Manila University. Her recent work, together with Marjorie Evasco, is Inter/Views: Six Filipino Women Poets in English (1993).